ACCESSIBILITY FOR PERSONS WITH SPECIAL CHALLENGES

We make every effort to reasonably accommodate applicants with special needs. Our classroom and dorm suites are accessible by elevator and some of the dorm suites are especially designed to be accessible for physically challenged students. Most cities in Europe, including Dublin, are not as accessible to persons with physical challenges as are some cities in the United States, although many of the city buses are wheelchair accessible. Access to some offices and facilities on the UCD campus and to some internship supervisors' workplaces is limited. For more information regarding accessibility in Ireland, see Ireland Information: accessibility at <http://www.ireland.com/accommodation/articles/accessibility/>.

If you require special accommodations, please consult as early as possible with our Program Director, Professor Matt Lamkin, at matt-lamkin@utulsa.edu, so that we can determine whether the facilities of the program can accommodate your particular needs and the availability of these facilities.

If you receive testing or classroom accommodations at your home school, your school must send verification of your accommodations to the Program Director, Professor Matt Lamkin, at matt-lamkin@utulsa.edu or to Professor Matt Lamkin, University of Tulsa College of Law, 3120 East 4th Place, Tulsa, Oklahoma 74104
